Background:

My shallow parents, Locien and Pandothiel, have no depth, no spirit, no vision. Oh, when I was a small elf boy I could only see as far as they, and I lived for the elven festival days and rainbows and flowers. In those days I was named Nostalion.

Then as I grew to manhood, the scales fell from my eyes. I have had my first Summer job at Nestarion's house of Herbs and Potions, where I met her. Lindariel showed the same innocent sweetness as the other elves from the village, and we fell so deeply in love. But cruel fate turned her against me, and we broke up. I saw that my life was over; this tragedy without name tore our eternal love; no elf could ever have so complete and full a love. I saw then the shallow veneer of bourgeois elf culture and it's petty joys; that there is nothing but darkness beneath. That was when I began to join the goth bards, so we could explore our pain and darkness together. I learnt the Daemonic language, and found speech that touched my soul. I invite Charon to bring me death and decay. I took a new, Daemonic name -- ο ύπνος του θανάτου, or "Ο ύπνος του thanátou." That is, "Sleep" or "Sleep of Death" -- that for which i long. I must plunge deeper into the dismal arts, that I can bring that sleep of death -- the slumber hex -- to more.
